

But for God's promise never to abandon his creation that reveals his glory, this would be the most chilling audio I've ever heard that provides insight into why the marital contract recording act may truly be the most important piece of legislation pending before any state legislative body this year.

It conforms, in the negative direction, to the positive testimony Jeff gave to the Senate Judiciary Committee about why the legislation is so important and why it is important to take advantage now of the rationale in Obergefell that was clearly limited to statutory law. If we don't, then we may wander in the wilderness for 50 years like we have followed Roe.

God has given our state the opportunity to make a declaration regarding the true nature of man and woman and marriage and mother and father and parent and child and the family. These are worth fighting for as a matter of faithfulness, even if God does not give us victory in the United States Supreme Court. Like the servant in Luke 12, we will have "done that which was our duty to do."
