FB restricts me and doesn't even tell me what false information I shared that offended so terribly. FB either deleted the offensive post, or the tyrants simply don't like my views in general (I've known that to be the case for some time). The only post I made on January 12 that appears on my feed is advice not to let a cell phone replace one's family. If I shared false information in some other post, they either have deleted the post or refuse to identify it. This is tyranny, and it should not be this way in America. The handwriting is on the wall, however. Until the Congress and the courts rein in Big Tech, it will only get worse.

Your cell phone has already replaced your watch, camera, calendar, and alarm clock. Don't let it replace your family.
