

Don't for a New York minute allow yourself to be duped by leftists who are accusing conservatives of being extremists for wanting to regulate IVF so unborn children are protected from experimentation and harm. The leftists are the extremists. First, they don't give a rat's rear end about infertile couples. In fact, given their belief the world already has too many people in it, most of them probably hope infertile couples remain that way. Second, if they really wanted couples longing to become parents to be able to become parents, they wouldn't be promoting abortion during all nine months of pregnancy for any reason or no reason. They instead would be recommending adoption to those with unwanted pregnancies and to couples desperately wanting children.
